Use eggs with a lavish hand during this period of seasonal abundance.

That's the advice of Extension specialists.

They say that in the first four months of 1960, egg production was nearly 6% greater than a year earlier, and supplies still are plentiful.

There are some golden rules in egg cookery. Store eggs under proper conditions — clean, covered, and cold. It's best to keep eggs in a covered bowl or pan, away from strong-smelling foods. Without a cover, eggs lose moisture faster and may absorb odors. Always keep them in the refrigerator, since eggs stored at room temperature may lose as much in quality in three days as those kept two weeks in a good refrigerator.

First rule whether you're cooking eggs in water, frying pan, or oven, is to use low to moderate, even heat. Like all protein foods, eggs cooked at too high temperatures become tough and leathery.

Other egg-cooking rules: When making custards or other dishes that call for hot milk to be added mix sugar with the egg and not with the milk.

Add hot liquids or mixtures to the beaten egg a little at a time. Don't overcook.

COMMENT ON SPORTS

By Pete Fritchie

Washington, D. C.- The Detroit Tigers, who either seem to play the best or the worst ball in their league this year, are now mandatory considerations in the American League pennant race.

This writer thought they should be considered back in March, and even picked the Bengals to win the flag this year. Then, when they got off to the worst start in the history of the club, winning two and losing fifteen, we stepped down off what had appeared to be cloud nine.

After the last few weeks and the Tigers' eastern road trip, on which they banged New York for a three-out-of-four series take, we are forced to take another look. Frankly, Jimmy Dykes is proving to be the manager of the year, so far, and if he carries the Bengals to the top, he can't miss.

The little round man with the cigar and the good golf game is doing a wonderful job for Detroit. One of his greatest moves was to install Charlie Maxwell in the Detroit lineup again and when the Tigers play the Yankees and have Maxwell, Frank Lary, Al Kline and Don Mossie and Kueen, it is bad for New York.

Paul Foytack's pitching, too, has improved so much that he is getting into the act also. It is a known fact around the league that the team which wins the flag will have to beat the Yankees and so far, as usual, the Tigers are beating the Yanks. In eleven games this year, the Bengals have grabbed eight.

Unless the spell breaks, and it may, Detroit could be on its way with the little round man a sure shot for manager of the year.

In FASHION now

The late summer look for the ladies of fashion will be soft, flattering and rounded. All the tricks of the trade will be employed to give the girls the most feminine of figures.

There seems to be no extremes of styling or distortions anywhere from shoulder line to hemline. Natural curves are accentuated slightly. Shoulder pads are unheard of, but over-sized puffed sleeves are the order of the day.

Skirt tops, whether that of a suit or one-piece dress, are characteristically full and gathered in by a wide waist-cinching belt.

Some leading designs have retained the empire look to some extent, Skirt lengths are still short, just covering the knee.

Snakes lie high at the waist, deep fringes, matching hats, the monochromatic look with jewelry continuing, rather than contrasting with, the basic color of the costume — these are all fashion notes worth remembering.

Favorite fabrics for daytime wear include Italian silks, linens, heavy woven cotton, and really silk. For evening you will see a lot of lace and filmy chiffon.

THIN-SHELLED EGGS COMMON PROBLEM

Thin-shelled eggs are a common nuisance in the poultry house during the hot summer months, says D. D. Bragg, poultry specialist at VPI.

He says older birds (those which have laid 8 to 10 months) have a tendency to lay eggs with thinner shells and thinner albumens regardless of weather conditions. However, work done at Colorado State University indicates that one ounce of ascorbic acid per ton of feed will thicken the egg shell. More than one ounce per ton can have bad effects.

Bragg says poultrymen should also be careful to see that the birds have plenty of calcium and vitamin D in their laying rations. A little added calcium might help improve the egg shells of birds that are in the latter part of their laying period, especially those which have been fed often on high level antibiotic feeds which contain no calcium. Although most laying rations contain 2 1-2 to 3 1-2% calcium, it is generally advisable to feed oyster shell free choice to the birds on the floor, and to occasionally sprinkle some shell in the feed troughs of caged layers.

A report from Rutgers indicates that cage layer "fatigue" is definitely related to vitamin D and calcium levels in the diet. The report states that when dietary calcium is increased to at least 2 1-2%, the researchers have been able to reduce, if not entirely overcome, the incidence of cage layer fatigue.

Health and Beauty

Most foot troubles have their foundation in childhood and are the result of poorly fitted or outgrown shoes .Don't wait for your child to tell you his feet hurt.

Shoes should be checked every month. Up to the age of 12, it is possible for a child's foot size to change every three months.

The construction of a shoe is next in importance to the fit. We like leather shoes best, for they provide the resilient support required by growing feet. Leather also has the advantage of breathing with the foot and allowing foot perspiration to be evaporated.

Never use hand-me-down shoes. No two children have identical feet, even though their sizes may be the same.

Consult your physician if your child shows any sign of flat feet, toeing in or toeing out, or knocked knees.

You can rely on your local shoe retailer to fit your child's shoes if no foot problems are evident. He will probably recommend all-leather shoe construction for comfort and healthful support.

Too Stupid To Be Guilty

Cairo.- A Cairo lawyer argued recently his client was too stupid to be guilty.

Attorney Mohammed Kamal Abul Khier was defending Ibrahim el Atwy, accused of espionage for Israel. The lawyer told the military court of Port Said: "Intelligence is an essential factor in espionage, but el Atwy is known for his stupidity. Therefore, my client cannot be guilty."

Dual Capacity

The chief constable of a small English town was also a veretinary surgeon. One night the telephone bell rang. The chief constable's wife answered it.

"Is Mr. Blank there?" said an agitated voice.

"Do you want my husband in his capacity of veterinary surgeon or as chief constable?" inquired the woman rather pompously.

"Both, madam," came the reply. "We can't get our bulldog to open his mouth, and — there's a burglar in it."
